

Harbinger Gallery

Waterloo, Ontario

Created by Canadian artists, Nicholas Rees and Aggie Beynon, the free-form sculpture and its accompanying that now graces the front lawn of the Harbinger Gallery in

"With many other sculptures, they can get discolored because of air pollution," Rees says. "With TX Active our sculpture will remain white for years to come."

Manufactured by Hanson Hardscapes of Cambridge, ON,

The SunLife Financial building is managed by Bentall, LP, a leader in sustainable property management throughout

The fact that their creation will help reduce pollutants surrounding its surfaces was also an important conceptual

The spire and bench are constructed of sculpted styrofoam, interaction with nature, accent strips of niobium metal are

TX Active®: good, clean design

When applied to various materials, photocatalysis levels of photoactivity achievable with TX Active cement is such that it actually abates the organic and inorganic

A pioneer in sustainability

Heidelberg Materials uses its Developing sustainable and intelligent heavy building materials, we provide the Material to build our future.

